- 11) The Annual Sessions is the most important event of the SLAAS and its members look forward to presenting their research, to be exposed to new global developments in science, to meet their colleagues and be rejuvenated with new ideas for continued professional development. Understanding this need of the scientific community for national development, the State has made available duty leave and travel facilities to members of the SLAAS (Establishment Code: Section 12.10) to attend the Annual Sessions. The universities pay the annual membership fee of the academics and most universities even pay the membership fee for life.

Following is the extract of the Establishment code Chapter XII, Section 12.10 and Public Administration Circular No.5 of 1970:

Members who are Government officers or Corporation employees are permitted to be absent from their station for the purpose of attending the Annual Session without such absence being counted as leave. Free Railway Warrants to Colombo and back would also be issued by the respective departments to all such employees for the purpose of attending the session.
